

Question 28 continued - - -

*Key Python libraries

- a) Pandas - allows for data manipulation and analysis by providing data frames
- b) NumPy - It is a library for numerical computing
- c) Matplotlib - It is a library for creating static, animated and interactive visualisations
- d) Scikit-learn - It is a library for machine learning algorithms

Question 29

- Data privacy is the principle that dictates how personal information is collected, handled and shared.
It is important because it prevents misuse or unauthorized access of sensitive information and it protects people from identity fraud.

• General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) outlines important digital rights for individuals and imposes strict obligations on any organisation that collects, processes or stores personal data.

It applies to the European Union countries and countries of the European Economic area such as Norway, Iceland etc.